New York, April 23.—The sixty-odd Eastern-bound passengers of the illi-fated steamer Danmark reached New York from Philadelphia early this morning, and were taken care of by the agents of the Thingvalia Steamship Company. They were all of the better class of immigrants. They were, without exception, well dressed and of a cleanly appearance. Olof Wugeland, with his wife, who were bound for Worcester, Massachusetts, was one of the few English speaking people in the party. He is a florist by occupation, and had been in America before. In a conversation with a United Press reporter this morning he made a statement, which has not yet appeared in print, in connection with the casualty. He was told that his remarks were important and detrimental to the steamship company, but he adhered to his statement. He said that before the necident occurred, the date he could not recall, but thought it was on the 1st or 2d of April, one of the Norwegien immigrants told him that he had overheard a conversation in the officers quarters. One of the ship's officers had said to the others in the apartment that he thought the vessel would nover reach New York. Her machinery was in bad order, and had not received the care it should have before the steamer sailed. Her pumps were broken, and in case of an accident would be found of little service in throwing out the sea.

"I'm afraid the Danmark," the officer is "I'm afraid the Dammark," the officer is reported to have said, "will meet the fate of the Geiser." (The Geiser was a vessel of the same line, sank in collision with the Thingvalla about a year ago.) Wugeland further said that the vessel's coal boxes were aftre on two occasions before her machinery gave way. The first fire occurred about 10 o'clock on the night of the 29th of March, and the second about half nest three on the afternoon of night of the 29th of March, and the second about half past three on the afternoon of the following day. The passengers heard of both fires and showed more unessiness over the comparatively slight accidents than when the vessel became totally disabled. He was loud in his praise of the conduct of Captain Murrell and the officers and crew of the Missouri "throughout the terrible experience," Wugeland said, "The commander of the rescuing steamer acted with Spartan heroism. He neglected his own comfort to provide for us unfortunate people,"

FRANK ADAMS! CASE.

Judge Bradley.

Judge Bradloy this morning suspended sentence in the case of Frank W. Adams, who pleaded guilty of the charge of robbing the mails. He was arrested in December, 1888, for the embezzlement of a letter while employed as a clerk in the City Postoffice. Counsel Campbell Carrington stated to the Court that the young man, who is not over 23 or 23 years old, had obtained employment and was leading a proper life. He had borne an excellent reputation, and if sentence were suspended proper life. He had borne an exacellent reputation, and if sentence were suspended would return at once to his occupation. The boy's friends had asked that ieniency be used, and the District Attorney and the Postoffice people had approved that course. Judge Bradley expressed the hope that the expectation of his friends would be realized, and reminded him if he falled to conduct himself properly he was liable at any time to be brought up for sentence. Adams thanked the Court and all the parties interested who had acquiesced in this course, and promised them he would profit by the experience he had rome through.

The Randall Opened.

The Hotel Randall, at Fifteenth street and Pennsylvania avenue, was opened yesterday afternoon under the management of Abram Kershaw. This paper has already described the elegant furnishings of the honse, so that a repetition is superfluous. When it is said that the fifth-floor chambers have as handsome furniture as those on the second floor, it can be seen that the old style of managing hotels has been departed from—that style which presents a handsome appearance in the public parlors and the second-story clambers and herds the people on the upper floors in places about as large and sumptuously furnished as state-rooms on an ocean atcamer.

Soft Axminister carpeis are on the floors and the windows are all gracefully draped. The hotel is most conveniently situated, being on the principal avenue, but a short block from the White House, Albaugh's, the National Theatre, the Western Union Telegraph office and but a short distance from the uptown Departments. From the upper windows a fine view can be obtained of the river, the Virginia hills, Arlingion and Fort Myer. The cultinary department of the hotel was set in motion vesterials afternoon when a number of Judges of good living were invited to partake of the first dinner. The mean could not be aurpassed either in extent or in quality by any hotel in the country. The dining-room is most pleasantly located. It is on the Fifteenth street side and commands a view of the trees and folinge of the White lot.

NEWS FROM OKLAHOMA.

Three Men Who Took Claims Fouly Murdered.

Chicago, April 23.—A special to the Newstrom Guthie says: When the first train arrived here the town-site had been selected for us. It was on the cast side of the track, and already the wooden land office and 100 tents were standing, while twice as many more town lo's were staked out. A rude postoffice was opened, a lunch tent was going at full blast, and two meetings looking to organization had been held. Three or four hundred men had done all this, and they had been on the scene two or three days. They pretended to have complied with the law, and declave that they did not take up their lots until 13 o'clock. They had no right, by the special laws under which Oklahoma was opened, to be in the Territory at all, until noon to-day.

On a side track stood a Saata Fe directors car. In it were Judge Guthrie, for whom the town is named, Judge Foster, the United Etates merchal and other officers of the Federal Court at Wiebita, and some Topeka men. They had been there osters ship youn Government business, but really to secure towa lots, which they did in wholesale quantity. There were 500 deputy marshals on hand, and each had a lot. Not only is this true, but the same crowd, having its eyes on a fine piece of bottom land, lying across the track from the town, have been, in the most open mockey of justice, scouring the brush for boomers that they may occupy it themselves. Whether the Judges are parties to the schemes of their Topeka guests, who are more or less connected with the Santa Fe, is, of course, not known.

A special from Gutbrie early this morning says that three men who took claims there yesterday were foully murdered about 5 o'clock by claim jumpers. The names of the assaliants and their victims could not be learned. A vigilance committee is now scouring the country in search of the mis-events, who, it is said, will be summarily

Re Declares That He Was Authorized to Ride in the Inaugural Parade-He Describes His Ejection From

Policeman H. P. Cattell was called before the Armes court-martial this morning at the instance of the court, and was examined by the president of the court. He testified that on March 5 C.ptain Armes came to the Third Precinct Station-House and asked for an officer to arrest come person at the Riggs House, whom he would point out. He had no warrant, however, and this could not be done. On the evening of the 6th a warrant for the arrest of Captain Bourke came to the station. At 6 p. m. on the 7th it was banded to the officer to serve. That same evening Captain Armes came to the station and remarked that he would appear at the Police Court next morning, when the case should come up.

that he would appear at the Police Court next morning, when the case should come up.

No subpeats was served upon Captain Armes to appear, as it was understood that he would appear. After Mr. Caticil's testimony was concluded the court-room was cleared, and the reading of the record of Colonel Canaday's testimony, given yesterday, was proceeded with. When the reading of the testimony was concluded Captain Armes was put on the stand to make a statement and be examined.

He said: "Mr. President and gentlemen of the court, during the month of January, while General Barnum of New York was in this city, he asked me to find quarters for his troops and offered me an appointment on his staff. I declined, as I expected an appointment from General Beaver. Several days passed, and not hearing from Governor Beaver, I tendered my services to the Governor by letter. On the 13th of February I received an appointment on Governor Beaver's staff, signed by Adjutant General Hastings. I necepted February 16, by letter. My letter of acceptance bore my name in print, at the top of the page and there could be no mistake in the name. About the 19th or 20th of February, I took one or two gentlemen to headquarters and several were appointed upon my recommendation. Some time later, while at headquarters, General Hastings came up to me and informed me my appointment was a mistake. I said, This is very peculiar, General; some one has induced you to take my name from the list.' He renlied that this was not the case. I asked him to explain and he declined to talk any further about it.

"I returned to my office and wrote him a letter asking why my name did not appear in the published list of aides. This letter

"I returned to my office and wrote him a letter asking why my name did not appear in the published list of aides. This letter was inclosed in an envelope—an advertising envelope concerning some claims in Mexico—which bore the address, 'Hell in Texas.' He seemed to take offense at this.'Captain Armes testified further that General Hastings replied to this letter by simply informing him that his appolatment was a mistake. Some days afterward, when Governor Beaver was in the city, witness called upon him, and in the presence of General Hastings asked him if he had received a telegram from General Hastings regarding the correction of the mistake. Governor Beaver replied he had heard nothing, whereupon General Hastings whispered something to him. Then Governor Beaver said: "Captain Armes, the commissions are all out and the a'des appointed, and you had better ride in General Barnum's division. I will send you a commission when I return to Harrisburg.'- After some further conversation General Hestings lew into a rage and ordered witness out of the door. For this conduct he atterward apologized Captain Armes said he afterward received an appointment to ride in the parade in a position near the President's party. While iding peaceably along in the processor. Colonel Gibson rode up to him in a gait between a walk and a gallop and said: "You must get out of this procession." In response to witness' query as to what the trouble was, Colonel Gibson tien took hold of Captain Armes leafe and Captain Eorike rode up and grasped his bridle-rein both being very violent in their manner, and, without giving him time to explain, handed him over to the police, and he was put out of the parade. Captain Armes testified he still-believed that Colonel Gibson and Captain Bourke acted in a dunnken and disorderly manner and he believed it simply because it was hardly credible that two tain Bourke acted in a drunken and diso tain Bourke acted in a drunken and disorderly manner and he believed it simply because it was hardly credible that two officers of the regular army could act in such a violent and uncalled for manner if they were sober.

Captain Armes said he came to the Police Court on the 6th, 7th and 9th of March to attend his case, but did not come on the 8th. Count on the 6th, 7th and 9th of March to attend his case, but did not come on the 8th, as by that time he had given it up as impossible to have the case come up. He then went to see General Drum and endeavor to have a military trial and was informed that he himself was likely to be the subject of a military trial, as charges had been fpreferred by Captain Bourke, so Captain Armes then preferred the charges against him. Captain Armes stated his case to the court clearly and concisely, and during the recital his manner was calm, dignified and placid. He read to the court his letter to Governor Beaver, published in Trix Cartic March 16.

Not receiving any reply to his letter witness called upon Governor Beaver ten days later at the Riggs House. When General Beaver came in he extended his hand to witness and greeted him. Governor Beaver tend by he had a decided.

"I then reached up my hand as he started off," continued Captain Armes, "to detain him. He took this as an insult and I was taken hold of by Hewes. Upon being released, I walked quietly out of the hotel and went about my business." Captain Armes recited his correspondence with the Inspector-General relative to the investigation of charges against him and his subsequent summons before the court-martial. He also read to the court his letter to Governor Beaver, asking him to request that ernor Beaver, asking him to request that further proceedings in the court-martial be

"I did not make this appeal, as has been stated, on behalf of my family," explained Captain Armes. "I never pleaded to escape from any merited punishment on account of my family. During the time I was trying to get restored to the army I never asked my wife to say a single word in my behalf.

"The court will notice that in none of my letters have I reflected upon Governor Beaver. I do reflect upon General Hastings. In my letter to Governor Beaver you notice I say "General Hastings is not a gentleman." I further state here that General Hastings is a hiar and a coward."

Captain Armes read to the court some accounts of his service during the war, giving the names of the officers he served under. Captain Armes stated he did not tell the policemen of the Third Precinct that he would appear at court on the morning of the Sth of March.

Representatives of the Mound City Interview the President.

The long-expected Missouri delegation, consisting of Messrs. Wade, Frank and Niedringhaus, filed into the library as soon as the door was opened and unburdened themselves concerning their grievances in the matter of patronage. It appears that they had formed the idea that all that was necessary was for them to suggest certain appointments and they would be made. But this was an erroneous impression, as the Congressmen in question quickly discovered, and they hastened to Washington to obtain such redress as possible. The President received them courteously, but made it manifest that the wish of a Congressman would not be regarded as law by the Administration, but advice and suggestions would be thankfully received as a matter of guidance. There will be music in the air when the representatives of the Mound City return home without scalps dangling at their belis.

The President's callers to-day included Senators Flumb and Cullom, Representatives Niedringhaus, Eingham, Peters, Frank, Wade, Henderson, Helkup and Caldwell; Hon. James Hill, Mississippi; Hon. QUITE A FLURRY CAUSED.

The Action of the Assessor's Assistant Causes Some Commotion. Causes Some Commotion.

There was quite a little flurry at the District Buildings this afternoon, upon the discovery by Assessor Williams that his assistant had been receiving the fees charged for the collection of unpaid taxes. The law is that all money should be paid to the Collector. The Commissioners wrote him a letter, instructing him to famediately hand to the proper person all money in his possession, together with a satisfactory statement of all funds received by him not heretofore accounted for. They also wrote the assessor instructing him to make an investigation and report to them. He has written them that the practice has been in vogue since the presque of the act providing for the issue of the certificates and continued up to the present time. The matter will be examined thoroughly.

SIR JULIAN PAUNCEFOTE WILL AR-RIVE TO-DAY.

Her British Majesty's Minister's Ideas About America-His Family - He Won't Talk Politics as His Prede.

The smart servants bustled about and shook rugs and dusted furniture until the most vivid picture of spring house-cleaning in all Washington was that presented by the British Legation, at Connecticut avone and N street, this morning. Not that the legation was particularly dirty or dusty, but for a half year or so the big mansion has been virtually unoccupied, and it was livelier looking this morning than before for a year nearly. The withlows were all open; a young negro man was on top of a step-laider scrubbing away at the upper panels of the massive oak doors; another withlows were all open; a young negro man was on top of a step-ladder scrubbing away at the upper panels of the massive oak doors; another supper the silver handles and brass rails; the bangings were all being taken down and shaken free of the dust accumulated during a season's desertion; the dust was hangings were all being taken down and shaken free of the dust accumulated during a season's desertion; the dust was being rubbed from the gilt picture frames, and fires were started all over the house, despite the bright sumshine, to take the winter's damp and chill from the rooms. The secretaries in the legation's office, at the back of the mansion, were busier than before for months, and the number of servants had been redoubled.

It was all because Str Julian Paunecfote is coming this afternoon, and is probably here by the time you read this. He left New York city this morning soon after 9 o'clock on the "limited," and came straight through. Hon, Michael Herbert, the Charge d'Affaires, went to New York a couple of days ago to meet the new representative here of Her British Majesty's government. Sir Julian arrived on the Etruria Suuday, and dined with Minister Whitelaw Reid last night. Mr. Herbert met him at the dock, and is conducting him to this city. They are to arrive at 4:12 o'clock this afternoon, and at the depot all the gentlemen of the legation, from the under secretaries to the coachmen and the stiff footmen, will meet the new Minister. He will be driven at once to the legation, from the under secretaries to the coachimen and the stiff footmen, will meet the new Minister. He will be driven at once to the legation and get ready for dinner.

There will be no formal reception or anything of the sort. No especial preparations are being made for his reception other than a general cleaning up. There will be no decorations nor will there be any ceremonles. The new minister will merely walk into his legation and make himself at home. Sir Julian is a handsome old man with white side whiskers and hair that make him look just the age he is—60 years. He is over six feet tall and looks as if he might be an athlete if he wasn't too old. He wears no whiskers and elosely-trimmed white side whiskers, and his hair is as white as his whiskers and quite scapt. His manners are unusually snave and genial, and he sectus the sort of a man destined to unlimited personal popularity.

unusually suave and gental, and he seems the sort of a man destined to unlimited personal popularity.

He has three young lady daughters and one younger one, who is not out yet. This youngest girl is expected to make her debut here next season. Lady Pauncefote and the four daughters are still in England, but Sir Julian says that he is going over to bring them back with him next August. Sir Julian talked freely to reportors yesterday. He said he knew as should like America. "It is true," he said, "that I have hardly had a chance to see any of it yet, but I have met so many Americans in England and heard so much of this country that I do not feel like a stranger in it." Sir Julian, with largely developed prudence, said:

"I shall not venture to give any opinion on political subjects. My position in the Foreign Office at home made me familiar with the details of the Fisheries treaty and the Extradition treaty. I cannot say whether another commission will be sent here to consider either of these questions. The Fisheries dispute is probably the most serious, but I am here with the most pacific intentions and bear with me the cordial good will of Her Majesty's Government. We have only the kindest feeling toward America in England, and I am confident that I shall that it reciprocated here."

Sir Julian was not particularly sequainted with Mr. Blahne, and he said he left Eng-

Sir Julian was not particularly sequainted with Mr. Blaine, and he said he left Eng-land before English people had time to ex-press any sentiment about Minister Lincoln press any sentiment about Minister Lineoin, except one of inquiry. But Sir Julian has no doubt that he will receive a cordial reception in London. He was sorry he could not stay in New York for the Centennial Celebration. Sir Julian was born in Munich, September 13, 1828, and was educated at Paris, Geneva and Marthorough College. He became a barrister at linest Temple when he was 34 years old, and was appointed Attorney-General to Hong Kong three years after, becoming Chief Justice of that colony four years later. In 1574 he was made under-secretary for the colonies, and permanent under-secretary seven years ago. He was knighted in 1874, made a companion of the bath six years later, and four years ago he was given the grand cross of the order of St. Michael and St. George.

George,
Sir Julian has a taste for society, and he and his family will be shining lights in the brightest circles of Washington society.

Sir Julian Pauncefote, who arrived yesterday on the Cunard steamship Etraria, stayed at the Brevoort House. He was accompanied only by his private secretary. Mr. H. Ames. He said: "There is no truth in the report that my appointment is merely provisional, and that I expect to stay in this country only a short time. My appointment is the same as my other appointment in the diplomatic service, and I have come to this country, with the expectation of staying here. My family consists of four daughters. One of them is 'out.' They will come over at an early date."

Sir Julian might pass for the elder brother of Chauccey Depew. He is a man of imposing height, carrying just enough fiesh to give him an impressive prosease. He is bald. His hair and close-trimmed mutton-chop whiskers are snowy white, his smooth haven cheeks are full of color, his eye is of a slate-colored blue, and his rather large mouth is of a very benigh expression. He talks rapidly and does not enunciate his words very distinctly, but has genial manners and shows evidences of considerable diplomatic training. He pronounces his name as if spolied "Pancefate."

While it may not be possible to ascertain the true reason for the Crar's sudden desire to purify the marriage relations of his kinsmen, it is suggested that the state of nervous prostration into which he has been thrown by his ever-increasing fear of Nihilist attempts to take his life, may have had something to do with his action. It is known positively that His Majesiy has become convinced that he is doomed to an end as violent as that to which his father came, and the increase of his devotion to religion has kept pace with, if it has not even outstripped, the growth of his terror lost he be assessimated. The ordinary safe-guards thrown around the Czar of all the Russias are no longer thought to be sufficient to render a successful attack upon his life impossible, and the greatly sugmented force of his personal attendants and protectors are actually instructed to watch one another, so thoroughly does the Emperor suspect everybody of having evil designs upon him.

Members of His Family.

Loxnon, April 23.—The issuance of an edict by the Crar of Russia forbidding the contraction of morganatic marriages by members of the Lomanoff family is generally regarded as quite proper, though the reason for promulgating the ulcase at this particular time is not quite apparent. Certainly no royal or imperial family of Europe has for many years past included in its membership anywhere near as great a number of persons availing themselves of this practice as has the imperial house of Russia. The late Alexander II., father of the present Char, was perhaps the most conspicuous violator of decency in this regard in his relations with the Princess Dollgorould, which resulted in the birth of several HOW A TOWN SPRINGS UP IN A

Ten Thousand Persons Organize Guthrie by Electing a Mayor and Council

—A Daily Paper Already Running

In real estate began business before 2 o'clock in the afternoon. One enterprising dealer had as a background for the safe transaction of business a stock of rifles, which had been placed there by the Government troops on duty at the laud office. Near by was the tent of United States Murshal Needles. The tent was surmounted by a large American flag. When the sec-ond and third sections of the train had arrived, nearly everything in sight had been taken, and the only recourse left to those disappointed in securing lots was to buy out such holders of lots as were willing to sell or run the risk of taking outside the legal limit. Both courses were adopted and a good number of Guthric City lots changed hands. The first sale was made by a man named R. C. Rummels of Malvan, Kan., who sold a fine 25-foot front lot near the land office for $5 to an old doctor, a resident of one of the Indian reservations adjoining Oklahoms. The purchaser re-fused $50 for the lot five minutes later. Several transfers were made and others who were determined to locate here drove stakes outside the limits the town. This is preparatory to the purchase of homestenders' rights and extension of the city limits. Guthrie already has its main street, its Harrison street, its Guthrie avenue and its Oklahoma avenue, and yesterday morning it was a wilderness, where the antelope sported and the lack rabbit flapped its ears in the sun. In the afternoon, at 4 o'clock, the first municipal election occurred. The election notice appeared in the Oklahoma Herald, a daily paper published at Guthrie in the first day of its

In other words, I should be giad to surrender my ex-Presidential life membership. I understand, of course, that I must run the chance of an election, but if opportunity is offered my intentions formed when I took up my residence here will be carried out."
